

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF PUERTO RICO

PUERTO RICO TELEPHONE COMPANY, INC.,

Plaintiff,

V.

SAN JUAN CABLE, LLC.

Defendant.

Civil No. 11-2135 (GAG)

OPINION AND ORDER

Puerto Rico Telephone Company, Inc. (“Plaintiff”) brings this action seeking damages for violations of federal antitrust laws and state Anti-Monopoly laws by San Juan Cable LLC d/b/a Onelink Communications (“Defendant”). Plaintiff claims Defendant committed violations of Sections two and three of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 2 and 3, as well as the Puerto Rico Anti-Monopoly Act, P.R. Laws Ann. tit. 10, §§ 257-276. Presently before the court is Defendant’s motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted (Docket No. 22). Plaintiff opposed this motion (Docket No. 23).¹ After reviewing the parties’ submissions and the pertinent law, the court DENIES Defendant’s motion (Docket No. 22).

I. Standard of Review

“The general rules of pleading require a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Gargano v. Liberty Intern. Underwriters, Inc., 572 F.3d 45, 48 (1st Cir. 2009) (citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). “This short and plain statement need only ‘give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it

¹ The court notes Defendant filed a reply brief at Docket No. 25. However the court did not consider the reply brief because Defendant did not seek, nor did the court grant, leave to file a reply pursuant to Local Rule 7(c). L.Cv.R. 7(c).

3 rests.”” Id. (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007)).4 Under Rule 12(b)(6), a defendant may move to dismiss an action against him for failure to 5 state a claim upon which relief can be granted. See FED.R.CIV.P. 12(b)(6). To survive a Rule
6 12(b)(6) motion, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter “to state a claim to relief that is 7 plausible on its face.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570. The court must decide whether the complaint
8 alleges enough facts to “raise a right to relief above the speculative level.” Id. at 555. In so doing,
9 the court accepts as true all well-pleaded facts and draws all reasonable inferences in the plaintiff’s
10 favor. Parker v. Hurley, 514 F.3d 87, 90 (1st Cir. 2008). However, “the tenet that a court must 11 accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint is inapplicable to legal conclusions.”
12 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009). “Threadbare recitals of the elements
13 of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements, do not suffice.” Id. (citing Twombly, 14 550 U.S. at 555). “[W]here the well-pleaded facts do not permit the court to infer more than the 15 mere possibility of misconduct, the complaint has alleged-but it has not ‘show[n]’ -‘that the pleader is entitled to relief.’” Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 129 S. Ct. at 1950 (quoting FED. R. CIV. P. 8(a)(2)).16 II. Discussion17 Defendant asserts two reasons that support dismissal of Plaintiff’s claims. First, Defendant 18 argues the conduct Plaintiff complains of is immunized under the Noerr-Pennington Doctrine. (See 19 Docket No. 22 at 9.) Second, Defendant argues that Plaintiff has failed to allege an antitrust injury.
20 (See id. at 30.)21 A. Noerr-Pennington Doctrine22 Those who petition the government for redress are generally immune from antitrust liability.
23 See Prof’l Real Estate Investors, Inc. v. Columbia Pictures Indus., Inc., 508 U.S. 49, 56 (1993)
24 (“PRE”). However, the Supreme Court has created an exception to this general rule when the 25 petition seeking redress is a sham. See id. (citing E. R.R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor 26 Freight, Inc., 365 U.S. 127 (1961)). This exception was extended to cover proceedings in front of 27 administrative agencies in California Motor Transp. Co. v. Trucking Unlimited. 404 U.S. 508
28 (1972).

1 Civil No. 11-2135 (GAG)

2 In order to fit into the sham exception, the proceedings must be objectively unreasonable.

3 See PRE, 508 U.S. at 58. A sham is “evidenced by repetitive lawsuits carrying the hallmark of

4 insubstantial claims.” Otter Tail Power Co. v. United States, 410 U.S. 366, 380 (1973). The PRE

5 Court outlined a two-part definition of sham litigation stating “the lawsuit must be objectively

6 baseless in the sense that no reasonable litigant could realistically expect success on the merits” and

7 “whether the baseless lawsuit conceals an attempt to interfere directly with the business relationships

8 of a competitor through the use [of] the governmental process—as opposed to the outcome of that

9 process—as an anticompetitive weapon.” PRE, 508 U.S. at 60 (internal quotation marks omitted)

10 (internal citations omitted). The court should only discuss the second prong if the lawsuit is found

11 to be objectively baseless. Essentially, a sham is when an action is commenced without a genuine

12 belief it will end with a favorable result, but rather with the intention of delaying or interfering with 13 another.

14 Since the PRE decision, there is a split in precedent deciding if the objectively baseless

15 requirement applies to a pattern of legal proceedings. Both the Second and Ninth Circuits have held

16 this requirement applies when determining if one action constitutes a sham, but does not apply when

17 the challenged proceedings constitute a pattern of repetitive litigation. See USS-POSCO Indus. v.

18 Contra Costa County Bldg. & Const. Trades Council, AFL-CIO, 31 F.3d 800, 810-11 (9th Cir. 1994)

19 (“Professional Real Estate Investors provides a strict two-step analysis to assess whether a single

20 action constitutes sham petitioning.”); Primetime 24 Joint Venture v. Nat’l Broad., Co., Inc., 219

21 F.3d 92, 100-01 (2d Cir. 2000). Various district courts have held the objectively baseless

22 requirement to apply to cases asserting a pattern of proceedings. See e.g., Christian Mem’l Cultural 23 Ctr., Inc. v. Michigan Funeral Dirs. Ass’n, 998 F. Supp. 772, 777 n.2 (E.D. Mich. 1998).

24 In California Motor, the Court recognized that the filing of a series of litigation has more

25 serious implications than one singular suit. See USS-POSCO, 31 F.3d at 811. The question in

26 pattern cases is not whether the suits have merit, but whether they were instituted as part of or

27 pursuant to a pattern, without regard to the merits. See id. There is no language in the PRE decision

28

2 indicating the Court intended to overrule California Motor. Without such an explicit holding that
3 the Court intended to overrule California Motor, this court will read PRE and California Motor as
4 in harmony with one another. The court will follow the lead of the Second and Ninth Circuits that 5 have also read these cases together and held the objectively baseless requirement not to apply to 6 allegations of a pattern of proceedings.

B. Pattern of Proceedings

8 In order to apply this standard, the court must find a pattern or serious of litigation intended
9 to disrupt Plaintiff's ability to conduct business. Defendant claims Plaintiff fails to demonstrate 10 sufficient proceedings to constitute a pattern. (See Docket No. 22 at 29.) A review of the case law
11 from the circuits and districts allowing such litigation demonstrates that courts characterize as few
12 as eight proceedings as a pattern, while three proceedings are insufficient. Compare Livingston
13 Downs Racing Ass'n Inc. v. Jefferson Downs Corp., 192 F. Supp. 2d 519, 539 (M.D. La. 2001)
14 (holding defendant who initiated four suits and intervened in another five to meet pattern standard), 15 with Luxpro Corp. v. Apple Inc., No. C 10-03058 JSW, 2011 WL 10860207, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Mar.
16 24, 2011) (holding three proceedings insufficient to constitute a pattern).

17 Following these precedents, the court finds Plaintiffs have alleged a sufficient amount of 18 proceedings to be deemed a pattern. Defendant either initiated or intervened, in suits against 19 Plaintiff or opposed Plaintiff at various administrative hearings. (See Docket No. 11 at ¶¶ 35-58.)
20 While the court need not re-state each proceeding listed in the complaint, the court notes the actions
21 of January 13, February 10, April 2, June 15, and November 4 of 2009 along with all the various 22 appeals filed regarding these actions as sufficient to meet the pattern requirement.² (See id.; Docket

²⁴ “Ordinarily a court may not consider any documents that are outside of the complaint, or ²⁵ not expressly incorporated therein, unless the motion is converted into one for summary judgment.”
²⁶ Alt. Energy, Inc. v. St. Paul Fire and Marine Ins. Co., 267 F.3d at 30, 33 (1st Cir. 2001) (citing ²⁷ Watterson v. Page, 987 F.2d 1, 3 (1st Cir. 1993)). However, there is “a narrow exception ‘for
²⁸ documents the authenticity of which are not disputed by the parties; for official public records; for documents central to the plaintiffs’ claim; or for documents sufficiently referred to in the complaint.’” Alt. Energy, Inc., 267 F.3d at 33 (quoting Watterson, 987 F.2d at 3). The court notes

2 No. 24.) Defendant admits to opposing Plaintiff in seven proceedings, but makes no mention of the
 3 amount of appeals sought in each case. The court finds this activity sufficient to meet the standard
 4 for a pattern of litigation under USS-POSCO and Primetime 24.

5 C. Antitrust Injury

6 Finally, Defendant claims Plaintiff has failed to sufficiently allege an antitrust injury. (See
 7 Docket No. 22 at 30.) It is Plaintiff's burden to allege an antitrust injury. See Sterling
 8 Merchandising, Inc. v. Nestle, S.A., 656 F.3d 112, 121 (1st Cir. 2011). "Antitrust injury is 'injury
 9 of the type the antitrust laws were intended to prevent and that flows from that which makes 10 defendants' acts unlawful.'" Id. (quoting Brunswick Corp. v. Pueblo Bowl-O-Mat, Inc., 429 U.S.
 11 477, 489 (1977)).

12 The complaint contains sufficient factual allegations that Defendant's conduct not only
 13 delayed Plaintiff's entry into the market, but also protected Defendant's market share. (See Docket
 14 No. 62.) Plaintiff specifically alleges that by delaying a competitor from entering into a market,
 15 Defendant fostered an anti-competitive market, resulting in higher fees to the public. (See id.)
 16 Plaintiff also alleges it has lost revenue by the various delays. (See Docket No. 11 at ¶ 63.) Contrary
 17 to Defendant's contention, the complaint alleges Plaintiff's were injured due to the process of these 18 proceedings, not simply the outcome.

19 III. Conclusion

20 For the reasons set forth above, the court DENIES Defendant's motion to dismiss at Docket
 21 No. 22. All of Plaintiff's claims remain before the court.

22
 25
 26 Plaintiff's submission of materials at Docket No. 24 and Defendant's opposition at Docket No. 26.
 27 The court reviewed the materials, but did not consider the memorandum that accompanied those 28 materials in formulating its decision, as per Defendant's objection. Defendant does not object to the authenticity of the documents.
